

THE ART CENTER WILDLIFE HABITAT

On Saturday, October 18, 2008 the City of Boynton Beach Art Center grounds became a Certified Wildlife Habitat[™]. City employee, Vicki L. Robertson, took on this task and recruited over 70 volunteers to help plant native plants that will offer a refuge for wildlife where they can thrive in an urban area.

The City is working towards an eco-minded approach towards gardening, including the minimal use of chemicals and pesticides. This new space will educate the public about the importance of creating places for wildlife, as well as where citizens can retreat to a green space in our community.
